05/02/22 Weekly Washington Update

Headlines to Know

- With inflation at a 40 year high, the Federal Reserve is under increased pressure to undertake drastic measures to balance the economy. The rate setting meeting will conclude Wednesday and likely be followed by a decision to raise the short-term interest rate by half a percent. This would be the sharpest hike in two decades.
- A draft of a Supreme Court opinion leaked to Politico indicates that the court has voted to overturn Roe v. Wade. While the draft is not a final decision, it will undoubtedly have a massive impact on this year's midterm elections. This is the first time in history a Supreme Court opinion was leaked.

Other News to Know

- State primary election races are occurring in Indiana and Ohio today, the first multi-state primary of 2022. All eyes are on Ohio in particular, with both a Governor and Senate race on the ballot. In the race for Ohio governor, Republican incumbent Mike DeWine faces two conservative challengers. On the Democratic side, two former mayors are competing for their party's nomination. It's a crowded Senate primary for Republicans hoping to replace retiring Sen. Rob Portman, with Trump-endorsed candidate JD Vance leading recent polling. Congressman Tim Ryan is likely to receive the Democratic nomination.
- Per Press Secretary Jen Psaki, the Biden Administration is looking into steps to take action on federal student loan forgiveness, particularly for individuals making less than $125,000 per year. It is unclear at this time what exactly those steps might look like.
