February 03, 2022

The National Career Development Association (NCDA) is deeply concerned with the reports of nationwide bomb threats against historically black colleges and universities. NCDA stands in solidarity with all career development professionals, students, faculty and staff. We deeply empathize with the disruption and impact these horrible events have caused. We sincerely hope that swift justice is served and all can to return to a safe space for learning, teaching and serving. We also encourage all NCDA members to reach out to colleagues who are experiencing these unprecedented events to express support.
